Toughs Undertake to Run Mountain View, But Get Shot Up.

Two Men and One Officer Badly wounded. Two or Three will Probably Die.

Sheriff Blalock of Greer county was in the city this morning and gave us an account of a serious shooting affray at Mountain View last Saturday night in which Jess Morris the city mare at was dangerously shot and two or three, and perhaps four tough characters were severely wounded and may die. Jim William (Deaf Jim) George Cow, a Creek Indian, and Mark Saxton, alias Mark Williams, came to Mountain View and after tanking up proceeded to raise a row at the lunch house on the lake. Jessie Morris, aided by a couple of citizens, attempted the arrest of the men at Smith Brown's saloon, where the marshal ordered hands up. Deaf Jim grabbed the marshal's gun and it was discharged without harm, then Carr shot Morris through the right side. Morris wrenched his pistol from Deaf Jim and shot him through the temple. Morris and his assistants then turned their attention to Carr who was trying to kill the whole party. He was found the next morning a mile from the scene with a wound through the nose and two through the body. Saxton attempted to escape but was shot twice in the leg by a deputy and captured. Alf Acres, a deputy was shot through the knee. Another man was tracked some distance by blood, but not found. Up to this morning none were dead.
